Council on Technology Teacher Education

From The President

As the President of the Council for Technology Teacher Education, I can assure you that there are always a number of Council affairs "on the top burner", so to speak. For instance, in the last two weeks I completed the forward for the 2008 CTTE yearbook and reviewed a monograph proposal. I contacted various members of the executive team, including a lengthy phone call with Phil Reed at Old Dominion University. Multiple e-mails and phone calls to Reston (i.e., ITEA) addressed conference activities and membership issues.

But it's the "things" that I didn't do the past two weeks that has left the biggest smile of satisfaction on my face as we reach mid-September.

Just recently . . . .

* I did not forward the materials for the next Council yearbook to the publisher, because co-editors Rod Custer and Tom Erekson (and their writing team) turned in the manuscript by their September deadline.
* I did not host an event for young, emerging professionals in Washington, D.C. as Bill Havice and Roger Hill ran the "21st Century Leader Associates Program" with the help of ASEE, ITEA, NCETE, and NSF officials.
* I did not develop and submit the Council's program flyer to ITEA for inclusion on the Salt Lake City conference webpage, because V.P. Marie Hoepfl completed that task.
* I did not worry about the ITEA / CTTE / NCATE accreditation materials related to the scheduled Fall '07 program reviews, because Jerry Day has that task organized.
* I did not handle the CTTE checkbook or balance the August accounts, as CTTE Treasurer Brian McAlister has an excellent handle on the finances.
* I did not continue to populate the re-launched CTTE website, as Garner Dewey and Marie Hoepfl have been working on that project.

As should be obvious, CTTE is an association full of energetic, dedicated professionals. I truly enjoy (a) working with these leaders on a routine basis and (b) sharing news of Council work with the entire profession through this publication.

A note of thanks to all reviewers of ITEA / CTTE / NCATE accreditation materials. Dr. Gerald Day, our NCATE coordinator, will be organizing the review teams this fall. The efforts of Jerry and all CTTE team members are greatly appreciated!

ITEA / CTTE / NCATE Accreditation Schedule

A total of five schools have submitted materials for their ITEA / CTTE / NCATE program review this fall. That follows zero reviews in the previous calendar year (which was probably more of a quirk in review cycles, than anything else). The accreditation materials will be reviewed by teams of CTTE members, with recognitions for approved programs announced at the annual ITEA convention in Salt Lake City next February.

CTTE Yearbook Committee News

The CTTE Yearbook Committee, under the direction of Past President Michael De Miranda, has recently been working with potential co-editors on a yearbook about "research in technology education". Additional topics and writing team members are still being sought. Please contact Michael at Colorado State with your ideas, yearbook proposals, or interesting in helping with a future publication:

Monograph Series

One of the primary missions of CTTE is to promote and facilitate the scholarship of the profession. The yearbooks series and the Journal of Technology Education are two prime examples of Council efforts toward that goal. Another avenue to disseminate work is through the CTTE Monograph series.

CTTE Monographs provide an opportunity to address topics in a timelier manner than can the annual CTTE Yearbook, and in greater depth than other forums. A few of the more recent topics included a database for graduate research and alternative licensure models for T.E. certification. Certainly, there are many "other" issues and opportunities facing this association and our profession, each of which could become a monograph theme.

Please check out the details about proposing and preparing a CTTE monograph on the CTTE website (under "publications"). Additional information is available from Charles McLaughlin (@ Rhode Island College), chair of the Research & Scholarship Committee.

CTTE Early Career Leadership & Professional Development Initiative

Congratulations to the six participants in the Twenty-first Century Leader Associates program for the 2007 / 2008 academic year. This effort is directed by CTTE Leadership Development Committee co-chairs Bill Havice and Roger Hill. The "new" leaders include . . .

* Paul Asunda, a recent graduate from University of Georgia
* Jenny Daugherty, a doctoral fellow at the University of Illinois-Urbana, Champaign
* Jeremy Ernst, an assistant professor at North Carolina State University
* Petros Katsioloudis, an assistant professor at Berea College, KY
* Sylvia Tiala, faculty member at the University of Wisconsin–Stout
* Katherine Weber, a faculty member at California University of Pennsylvania

Now in it's second year, this program is designed to facilitate professional advancement in early career faculty. If you are interested in applying for this program in 2008 / 2009, please contact Roger Hill, University of Georgia (rbhill@uga.edu) or Bill Havice, Clemson University (whavice@clemson.edu).
